Happy Holidays Neighbors!

Our November meeting was very informative. We had Carolyn Lutticken from the Columbia Neighborhood Center to explain how Covered California works. The turnout was very low despite the very important topic.

On Dec. 3rd from 5:30-7:00 at the Council Chambers on Olive St. is a very important meeting regarding the new 49er stadium. There will be discussing the traffic and parking impact on our neighborhood. I suggest if you can come down and let them know your feelings. The LVNA board will be there to voice our concerns, if you are unable to make the meeting go to 49ersStadiumInfo.inSunnyvale.com for your comments.

There will be no December meeting due to the "Holiday Parade." However, because of scheduling conflicts the parade has been cancelled this year. ◆

Loving Your Dog

By Kim E. Palmer

There are many of us who have a dog or cat in their house who are family to them. The winter season is upon us which means the cold and rain for humans and dogs is not pleasant when you're out-side...RIGHT? I walk my dog every day/night and have heard several dogs that are either barking or crying to be let inside so they can be comfortable just like us. This saddens me that people can be that cruel to a loving family companion. Please take care and love your animal just like you want to be taken care of every day. From all the woof woof loving dogs in Fairwood Village.. ◆

9 Natural Flu-Fighting Foods

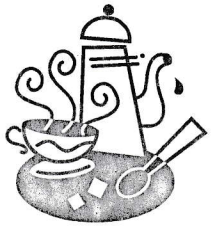

by Nissa Simon,
AARP Bulletin, October 2013

Eating and drinking right can help boost your immune system. You know what flu season means — get a flu shot and do whatever you can to stay healthy. These foods (and teas) can help you fend off the flu, and eat and drink well too.

Black-Eyed Peas - These nutritious legumes are rich in zinc, a trace mineral that keeps your immune system in working order. Pinto beans, peanuts, roasted pumpkin seeds and wheat germ are other good choices.

Carrots - They're rich in beta-carotene, which your body uses to ward off respiratory infections. Other good sources are dark green vegetables, sweet potatoes, pumpkin and winter squash.

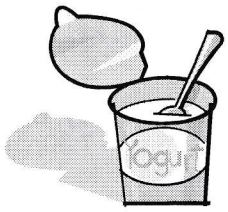

Tea - Green, black and oolong tea all contain naturally occurring compounds that reduce the risk of flu, including quercetin, a powerful antioxidant, and L-theanine, an amino acid found only in tea. Decaf teas contain the amino acid, herbal teas don't.

Yogurt - Probiotics, the beneficial bacteria found in yogurt and other fermented foods, strengthen the immune system. Not a fan of yogurt? Try cottage cheese, kimchi (a fermented Korean dish made of seasoned vegetables) or sauerkraut instead.

Tomatoes - Vitamin C-rich tomatoes boost the body's natural defense system in the same way their citrusy relatives do. One medium tomato provides 40 percent of your daily vitamin C, so have a glass of tomato juice at lunch and treat yourself to pasta with tomato sauce for dinner.

Mushrooms - These powerhouses increase the body's resistance to viral infections by boosting the activity of natural killer cells, a vital part of the immune system. Mushrooms are rich in selenium, low levels of which can increase the risk of developing a severe flu.

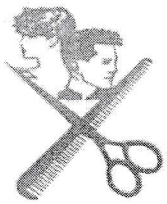

Almonds - These popular nuts are a rich source of the antioxidant vitamin E, which helps your body ward off viral infections. To maximize the absorption of vitamin E, opt for chopped almonds, almond butter or almond oil.

Chicken Soup - It may not prevent the flu, but a bowl or cup of soup can help your immune system fight off the virus in its early stages, thanks to a compound called carnosine. The only catch: You need to consume chicken soup throughout your illness to reap its benefit, says a 2012 study.

Wild Salmon - It's high in vitamin D, which the immune system needs to kill harmful bacteria and viruses, says John S. Adams, M.D., professor at the David Geffen School of Medicine at the University of California, Los Angeles. Farm-raised salmon has less, but is also a good source. ◆
