LVNA MEETING RECAP

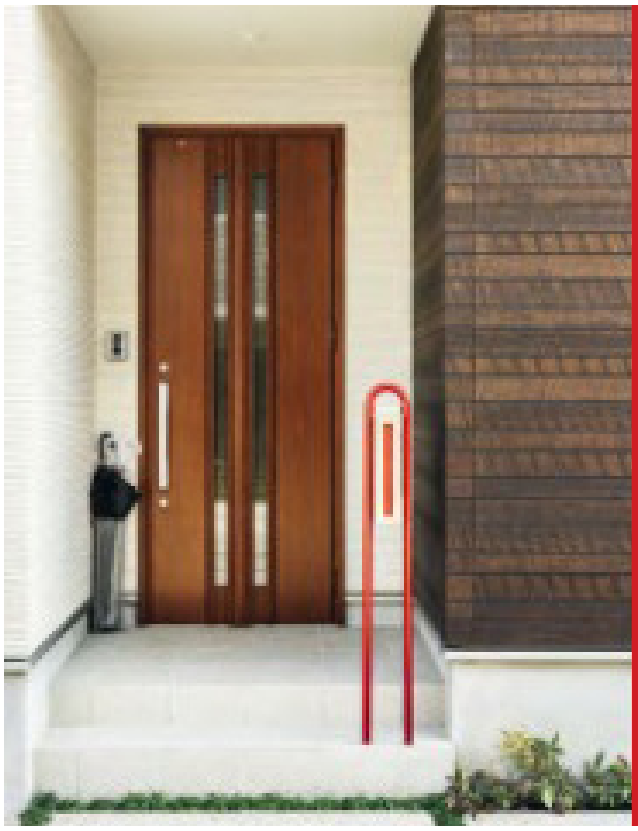

LVNA MEETING ON OCT 14

Dr. Moshe Lewis, MD., joined us for a discussion on the ongoing coronavirus pandemic and answered tons of great questions from you and your neighbors. On top of being a practicing Bay-Area physician for the past 15 years, Dr. Lewis also holds a master's degree in Public Health. For those who weren't able to join, we recorded the discussion and highly recommend checking it out: https://youtu.be/mYSt-XS_67k

A few takeaways:

- Is it absolutely necessary to wipe down products, including groceries and consumables, before they come inside the house? No. The virus is largely spread through aerosols and, while it's possible to contract it through contact with contaminated objects, immune systems do a great job at fighting off small doses that enter our body so it's a much lower risk.
- Why do I hear that small children don't need to wear masks but I see 2nd and 3rd graders wearing them? What's the difference? Docs have to be honest; there is a lot that we still don't understand. This virus is breaking a lot of norms. Even though the vast majority of children aren't severely impacted by COVID-19, they can still spread it to others so it's important for them to wear masks as well to help prevent spreading it to others, particularly the older people they come in contact with. If they see us wearing masks, they'll do it too. We need to be good role models.
- Why are some schools opening and others aren't? The response to this virus has been different all over the country and the population/demographics of particular areas plays into those decisions. Areas with higher elderly populations or where it's more densely populated may take a more cautious approach whereas others may not. School districts are following a similar approach. Without getting political, the lack of a consolidated response means that the response has come from the local level so there's a lot of inconsistency there.

There's so much more packed into this 1-hour discussion so, again, we encourage you to check out the video. Dr. Lewis does a fantastic job at explaining this complex subject.

FACTOID

Bay-area rain is right around the corner! OK, no, that's not our mind-blowing fact of the month. What is interesting, though, is how that rain and our yard cleaning methods can have major consequences downstream (pun somewhat intended).

Lakewood Village streets, and really most streets for that matter, are designed with a convex profile so that water naturally runs towards either side and gets carried into the storm drains, which then lead out into the bay. With our current dry-spell still in gear, the leaves on our deciduous trees have been hanging on tight but are already starting to give out and make their way to the ground. Wind and people are the primary causes of those leaves then making their way into the street, followed by the storm drains. While leaves off our properties tend to fall into that "out of sight; out of mind" category, their journey of destruction is just beginning.

Leaves that are carried into storm drains can cause blockages, leading to flooded streets. A few years ago, Fairwood was impacted pretty hard with flooding when Calabazas Creek maxed out, preventing the storm drains from having a way to empty. Now that particular event wasn't caused by too many leaves but a plugged storm drain has the same result, whether it's plugged by too much water at the end or by leaves blocking the path; roads fill with water. This obviously leads to safety concerns for driving in knee-deep water and the potential for property damage to our low-level houses when the wake makes its way up a driveway and into someone's garage. But perhaps the less obvious side effect is the overload of nutrients that those leaves carry.

Leaves caught in a storm drain are in the optimal location to fast-track the decaying process. That decayed mass of leaves is full of nutrients that basically act as a multi-vitamin for the bay. Those extra nutrients then lead to algae blooms, choking out our local sea life. So, before you blow or rake those leaves into the street, consider an alternative use for them which can actually help spruce up your garden next spring and preserve the balance of our local wildlife. – PET OF THE MONTH –

It was tough to remain inside during the peak of the COVID shelter-in-place order, but our cat Impy made sure that we defied the order and took him for his daily walk around the block. Many Lakewood dwellers know my wife & me as "those people who walk their cat". Unfortunately, at the ripe old age of 16, Impy succumbed to cancer, but his memory will last forever!

Instyle Beauty Salon, located in Sunnyvale-Santa Clara, is offering readers $150 off microblading, a new and popular procedure that creates the perfect eyebrow!

Normally $450, Instyle Beauty Salon is offering readers $150 off, making it just $300 for the procedure – which also includes the touch-up visit that is recommended within 4-6 weeks of the initial procedure.

Manual microblading is a form of a semi-permanent tattoo that involves using tiny needles (instead of a tattoo gun) that make up a small blade to help deposit pigment under your skin, one by one, for natural looking hair strokes. The procedure takes about an hour to 2 hours and lasts 1.5-2 years before needing to be redone to look fresh. Topical numbing cream is used to maximize comfort. Microblading is perfect for anyone with any hair color and is tailored to each individual client.
