President's Column

- Craig Crawford
President, LVNA

We have a crossroad for the LVNA. The elections for the new Board are at the March general membership meeting. You have to decide if you want the LVNA to move forward as a neighborhood organization or not. It will not survive without volunteers to take the reins and volunteer for the open board positions. The openings are for the President, which is the most important, and if this position is not filled then the LVNA is gone to history. Other Board positions that you can volunteer for are Vice President, 2nd Vice President, Treasurer, and Secretary, These positions require a few hours a month out of your time.

We have not had a woman president for a number of years, so how about some of you women out there, are you ready to step up and be counted? When the LVNA was first started, several women were President and did a good job, so lets have a woman president again. Leaders cross all boundaries of culture, race and gender. The only requirement is to care about your neighborhood and the people that live in it. Our Asian, Pacific Islander, and Hispanic neighbors have sadly been under-represented the LVNA. How about a President from one of these groups?

Wanted: Newsletter Coordinator

- Craig Crawford
President, LVNA

Our Newsletter Production Coordinator, Mel Anderson, has been working for the LVNA for over 10 years in this position. Mel has decided to take a break and pass this position to another volunteer. If you have a few spare hours each month, then consider this position.

The job description is: send bills to the advertisers, take the newsletter copy from the Editor to the Printer, and once it is ready, pick up the printed copies and give them to the newsletter walker coordinators for distribution to the newsletter walkers.

This is a key position and without this there is no newsletter. So, if you don't want to be on the LVNA Board but still want to volunteer, this is the position for you. Mel will be missed and we love you for all that you do. ■

"Lucky" Recovering from Injuries

- Editor

Last December, a 10 month old Scottish terrier named "Lucky" was set ablaze, allegedly by neighborhood children. Surviving those injuries was miraculous, but facing of the high cost of treating burns that extended over 15% of his body forced Lucky's owners to consider putting him to sleep.

Fortunately, a veterinary technician where Lucky received his initial treatment organized donations to a fund to offset the costs. Those donations, many from complete strangers, plus reductions in charges from the veterinarians, made it possible for Lucky's owners to go ahead with his treatment. Lucky is mostly recovered and back home now, the kindness of many making up for the cruelty of a few.

More pictures and story are at the veterinary's web site www.sbvs.com/luckie_fund.htm and in the January 15th issue of The Sunnyvale Sun. ■

I Remember

- Maxine Malstrom

On a hot day in August 1958, my young husband and I stopped in Sunnyvale to look at some Brandon-built homes. At the time, he was studying Engineering at San Jose State, and was also working full time in Mountain View as a technician. Our boys were three and four years old and our daughter was due to be born in a few months. I thought that the houses were too small and they all looked the same. However, my husband was excited that the houses were only a minute from the Bayshore highway and that the trip from work and school would be shorter. He also pointed out that with our limited income, the price was right.

We paid the sales office $15.00 to hold a house for us while we worked out a budget to be sure we could afford the mortgage payments. The next day, we gave them the $80.00 down (for Veterans) and agreed to use the option of buying a washer and dryer with the house. This added extravagance caused our monthly payment to be $101.00 per month. In those days, you were told that your house payment should never exceed ¼ of your monthly income, and $101.00 was really pushing it.

The houses were all painted pale colors with white trim and white rock roofs. The lawns weren't planted yet and there were no trees, shrubs, or fences anywhere north of Sandia Avenue. We learned to know our neighbors quickly and shared our clever solutions to common problems (like covering our windows with glass wax until we could afford curtains or drapes.)

There was no shopping center and most of us were one-car families with Dad working and

Mom at home. Going to the market required walking several miles, and those of us who had baby buggies were the lucky ones. I can remember crossing Bayshore highway at the signal (there was no overpass yet) and trying to push the buggy full of groceries and hold my little guys' hands at the same time.

We had two dairies within a mile our house and they made a nice outing for my children and me. Where 3Com is located, there was a dairy that had big glass windows where you could watch them milk the cows with machines. Across what is now 237 was Coppla Dairy Farm and they still did most of their milking by hand. Mountain View - Alviso Road (now 237) and Lawrence Station Road both were only two lanes wide, and there were no signals on either of them except at Bayshore. Traffic? Not much, except for the trucks that hauled along Lawrence. Truck traffic was heavy because that way was one of the shortest routes from the east bay and the peninsula. Old Oakland Road wasn't old yet.

South of Bayshore on the Santa Clara side were bean fields; east of the Village: Bartlett Pear orchards; north: acres of tomatoes and Swiss Chard. I still have volunteer chard sprouting in my back yard, and it's still better than what you can buy in the market.

I'll be moving from my home soon and it will be with mixed feelings. I know I will miss my house, my neighbors and my Village. Yet I am looking forward to making a new home, new friends and once again living near open fields and orchards.

[Editor's note: Maxine has been a wonderful neighbor in our cul-de-sac and we will miss her dearly. We wish her all the best in her new home near Modesto.] ■

This Month in Lakewood History...

- Brian Smithson

48 years ago: In 1955, the City of Sunnyvale filed paperwork to annex 150 acres at the northeast corner of Lawrence and Bayshore (now Units II and IV).

45 years ago: In 1958, the LVRA Social Committee was formed. This "women's auxiliary" of the LVRA held bake sales and organized social events. How times have changed!

41 years ago: In 1962, Bayside School (Lakewood's 3rd elementary school) was opened.

Opinions and Editorials

Letters to the LVNA

January 8, 2003

Dear Editor,

It was with great concern that I read Craig's threats to have vehicles ticketed on sweeping days. I would like to welcome him to the realities of today. This morning I took the time to count the cars, truck, trailers and RVs along one block of Lakehaven. There are about forty houses on this short bit of road. There were 109 vehicles parked outside, 34 of them on the street. One house had four cars, four trucks (one a duece-and-a-half) and a trailer, either in the driveway, on the lawn or in front of the house. Another has seven, three others five each. I have a small RV and will be adding three of four feet to driveway so I can get my car into the garage.

So, Craig, where do we park on sweeping day? Your position might have made sense when the Village was built, but the days of one car families is long gone. Are you going to pave your yard and invite us over? Aren't you the same person that was upset by people paving their yards or parking on their lawns?

There are two very simple things that could be done to make sweeping possible: alternate sides of the street sweeping and starting the sweeping at a more realistic time. Most of the "extra" vehicles are gone by 7:30. I'm off to work at 7:00.

By the way, there was a lot of wind during that storm and many leaves blown off of the City's trees. Not to mention branches and a couple complete trees. Maybe the time has come to cut the old trees down, before they crush someone's car, truck or child? It would also solve the leaf problem, the clogged drain problem and the trash on the sideways problem.

I would love to have the city's leaves swept up. I would love for the city to keep their leaves, branches and other tree trash off of my property. I would love to be back in that golden age when mom and pop and the 2.3 kids only needed one car, because a single income could pay the bills.

It isn't going to happen and writing tickets won't help.

- David Schlinkert, Lakehaven Dr.

[Editor's note: David wrote again later with a third suggestion, which was to have the sweepers alternate starting their route on the Lakewood side or on the Fairwood side.] ■

What's So Special About the LVNA?

- Brian Smithson

What's so special about the Lakewood Village Neighborhood Association? For me, the LVNA represents many things in our community:

- A group of people that any Lakewood Village resident can talk to about any neighborhood issues.
- A monthly meeting place where any and all residents can hold group discussions.
- A clearinghouse and conduit of information that is important to all residents.
- A loud and clear voice representing the concerns of Lakewood Village to the City and to the County.

- An organizing force for social and community events, like the parade, picnic, dumpster weekends, etc.
- An opportunity for local volunteerism though which people can "give back" to their community, meet their neighbors, learn and improve skills, and experience the satisfaction of contribution.
- A training ground for community leaders, many of who have gone on to important roles in the City and County government (including our most recent Mayor!).
- An organization with many, many accomplishments that make a difference to residents every day.
- An outstanding example of self-determination and democracy at the neighborhood level.
- A neighborhood tradition spanning forty-five years that is unique in Sunnyvale and exemplary in Silicon Valley.

I think that it would be a big loss for Lakewood Village if we did not have our neighborhood association, but that is exactly what will happen if people don't take the opportunity to nominate themselves for office and fill the open volunteer positions.

The LVNA (and it's predecessor, the LVRA) have from time to time closed their doors because of lack of participation. After some time, people realize what was lost and how much a neighborhood association is needed, but it can take months or even years to regain the momentum and organization necessarily to open it again. It is much easier to keep the LVNA going than it is to start over again.

If you have an interest in your community and a few hours to spare each month, I urge you to consider the opportunities available in the LVNA. For those of you who have participated in the LVNA in the past, I invite you to come back.

The LVNA, the meetings, the picnics, parades, and other activities, and this newsletter, cannot exist without volunteers like you. ■

Sunnyvale Completes Major Bikeway Expansion

- Sunnyvale Press Release

Sunnyvale, CA (01/23/03) -- The City of Sunnyvale has just completed the construction of 11 miles of new on-street bike lanes. This brings the total amount of bicycle lanes in the City to 33, nearly doubling Sunnyvale's bikeway network within the last three years.

The additional bike lanes are part of the City's ongoing efforts to promote and encourage bicycle travel and bicycle awareness. "The City is becoming a more attractive place to bicycle — whether it is a mode of travel to work or school, or for recreation" said Kevin Gregory, Chair of the Sunnyvale Bicycle and Pedestrian Advisory Committee. "We hope these additions to Sunnyvale's network of bike lanes will encourage those who live or work in the City to try bicycling."

The new bicycle lanes were designed and built using mostly outside grant funding from the Bay Area Air Quality Management District Transportation Fund for Clean Air program, the Federal Congestion Management and Air Quality program, and Transportation Development Act Article 3 funds. Mayor Julia Miller sits on the Board of Directors of the Bay Area Air Quality Management District. "Bicycling as a means to improve air quality is greatly enhanced with the addition of these bike lanes," said Mayor Miller.

The projects are the result of a comprehensive bikeway planning effort. The City's Bicycle Capital Improvement Program, which was adopted in 2000, prioritizes projects for expanding the Sunnyvale bicycle lane network and encouraging bicycle travel. Sunnyvale is hoping to expand the bike lane network even further, with bike lanes along Evelyn Avenue under development.

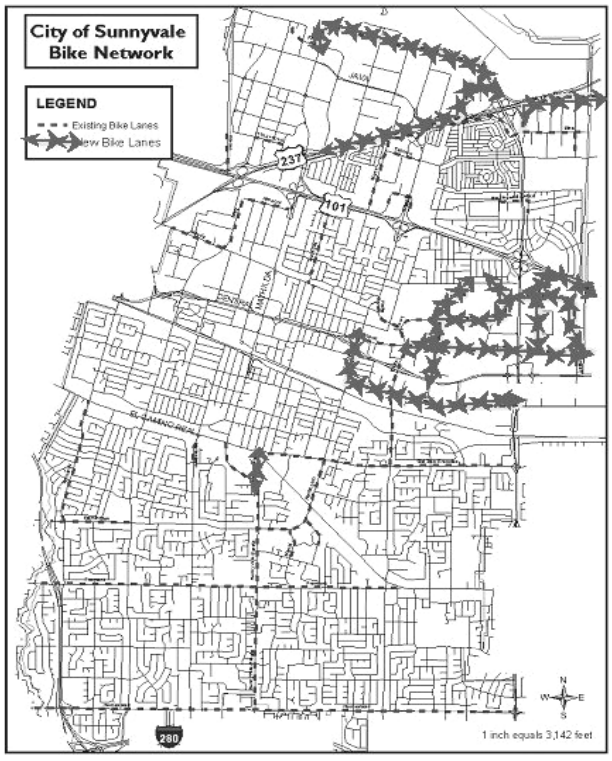

The following is a list of streets with new bike lanes. The map shows the new bike lanes in detail:

Volunteer Appreciation Night

- Craig Crawford
President, LVNA

February is the time for the LVNA to show its appreciation to the volunteers that help make the organization run. We will be holding our annual Volunteer Appreciation Night at the February LVNA meeting on February 12th.

If you walked a newsletter, helped cook at the picnic, brought snacks to the monthly meeting, sent in a letter to the Editor, or called me with a complaint, then you are a neighborhood volunteer! Basically, if you are a neighbor that has any connection to the LVNA, then you are a volunteer, so come out and enjoy.

We are having pizza to show our appreciation for your good work that helps our neighborhood remain one of the best places to live in all of Sunnyvale. Come out this month and receive your free pizza and meet the other volunteers that make up the LVNA working core. ■

Sunnyvale Responds to Proposed State Budget Cuts

Sunnyvale, CA (1/16/03) -- In response to two specific budget changes being recommended by the State of California to reduce its deficit, the City of Sunnyvale has outlined how this will impact the City's own budget and potentially affect its services. The Governor of California has proposed transferring the Vehicle License Fee from the cities to the state government, which would eliminate $650 million to cities this year and $1.45 billion for next year. If this change is implemented, Sunnyvale will lose over $8 million in vehicle license fees this year and next year.

Gov. Davis' proposal also takes $75 million in redevelopment authority funding allocated to cities this fiscal year and an ongoing shift of $250 million from cities beginning next year. If this proposed change is implemented, Sunnyvale could lose up to $2.5 million in redevelopment funds over the next two years. "We understand that the State has a very difficult problem and that there needs to be cuts," said Sunnyvale Mayor, Julia Miller. "But we suggest that the State consider alternatives to taking such deep cuts out of cities' budgets or we stand to have important city services

"The Vehicle License Fund is legally considered a direct local revenue source and should not be redirected to offset the State's budget crisis," said Bob LaSala, Sunnyvale's City Manager. "In regards to the redevelopment authority funding also being diverted from city governments, redevelopment agencies are a principal source of public infrastructure improvement and jobs. Our area has been particularly hard hit by job reductions and loss of redevelopment funds will only make it more difficult to recover."

According to the City Manager, Sunnyvale's budget system will allow the City to complete this fiscal year without significant changes to current services, projects, and Council-set service levels. "Because the system requires that we assess both the short-term and long-term affects of policy decisions, we have the lead time needed to address these fiscal issues on a careful, well-thought out basis," he added.

At this time, the City is examining a range of actions to address these financial issues as they begin to affect the City in 2003/2004 and in future fiscal years. Among these will be a review of planned equipment replacements, proposed filling of vacancies, and existing program and project priorities. Changes to existing service levels will be presented to the City Council before actions are implemented. ■
